GUIDELINES WHEN APPLYING FOR ABORIGINAL AND OR TORRES STRAIT ISLANDER HERITAGE CONFIRMATION.

NOTE: If you and/or your family lineage is not known by a member of Mudth-Niyleta's Board of Directors, your application for confirmation may not be successful. In such cases, we recommend that you apply to the Aboriginal Corporation in the area where you and /or family are known.

Why do I need to prove my Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander heritage?

Your Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander heritage is something that is personal to you. You do not need a letter of confirmation to identify as an Indigenous person. However, you may be asked to provide proof or confirmation of your heritage when applying for Indigenous-specific services or programs such as Indigenous health and wellbeing services, employment (Indigenous identified positions), school programs and scholarships for Indigenous students, university courses offering placements to Indigenous students, Centrelink and housing assistance offered to Indigenous people.

These services and programs are intended to help address the inequalities Indigenous people face as a result of past government policies, inadequate health care and lack of educational and employment opportunities. Requiring confirmation of heritage is about honouring this intention and ensuring that Indigenous-specific services and programs are actually benefitting Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people and communities

How do I meet these criteria?

Knowing your family history is the key to obtaining Confirmation of your heritage. To establish that you are of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander descent, you must provide a Family Lineage Chart (e.g. a family tree) on the approved form. You will need to gather as much information about your family history and heritage as possible to complete the chart. This can sometimes be challenging. We have provided information on the back of the Family Lineage Chart to help guide you through the process.

What if I am under 18 years of age?

If one, or both, of your natural parents have had their Aboriginality confirmed by Mudth-Niyleta Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Corporation, you are automatically eligible for confirmation upon supply of your Birth Certificate identifying your parent(s) by name. If you are able to, provide a completed Family Lineage Chart and/or a copy of your parents' Confirmation of Aboriginality, this will help us process your application.

If a Local Indigenous Community Organisation in a different region of Queensland or Australia has confirmed your parents' heritage, we recommend that you apply to that organisation for confirmation.

Who determines my application?

Applications (other than those submitted by persons under 18 years who are automatically eligible for confirmation), are considered by the Mudth-Niyleta Board of Directors at formal Board meetings.

How long will it take to process my application?

Issuing Confirmations of Aboriginality is not the core business of Mudth-Niyleta and processing applications can take up to 8 weeks.

What happens if my application is declined?

Consideration and approval of Confirmations is at the discretion of Mudth-Niyleta's Board of Directors, who may decline an application for various reasons. In particular, Mudth-Niyleta cannot issue you with a Confirmation if you have not provided sufficient evidence to establish that you meet the three criteria. If declined due to insufficient evidence, we will provide you with a brief explanation, so that you can obtain the required details and re-apply.

TIPS FOR COMPLETING “MYFAMILY”TREE

☒ Tracing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander family histories poses a unique set of challenges. Below are some tips to help you find the information you need to complete your ‘My Family Tree’.

1. Start with what you already know: What are your parents’ names? When and where were they born? Do they have any brothers or sisters? Who are your grandparents? Write this into your chart.
2. Talk to family and community members: Stories passed down through your family, and interviews with family members, are a key source of information. Since the 1980s, many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have recorded the life stories of their family and those of other community members. These are useful when tracing your family history.
3. Births, deaths and marriage records: These records and certificates can help you fill in the blanks in your family tree. Each state/territory has a registry where you can apply for the certificates of your parents’, grandparents’, great grandparents’ and so on. If they are alive, you will need their permission.
4. Research your family’s traditional area: Contact the local historical society of the town where your family is from. These societies are a great source of local and family history. You can pay a small fee for them to do a search on your behalf, or you can become a member and access their resources and facilities directly. Many societies also have indexes to cemetery records, local newspapers etc.
5. Expand your search: Look for other sources of information. Historically, governments, organisations and individuals created records about Indigenous people. These include welfare and protection boards, adoption agencies, education and health departments, police, churches, missionaries, anthropologists and other academic researchers. Consider different types of records such as photographs, maps, genealogies.

KEY POINTS TO REMEMBER WHEN RESEARCHING

Name variations: When you look for records, it is important to check all possible spelling and variations of a person’s name. Your ancestors may have used, or been known by, many different names during their lifetime, including a traditional name, kinship name, nickname or married name. Employers or missionaries also changed the names of a child when a child moved to a foster home or training institution. Record and use all of the information you find: Remember that brothers and sisters share the same cousins and grandparents. Sometimes it is possible to find out more about a particular ancestor, by looking into family members outside your direct lineage. Research one family line at a time: It can be confusing to try to research your mother’s family and father’s family both at the same time.

Be prepared for what you find: Historical records about Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people often reflect the biased and racist views of the white officials, missionaries and station owners who created them, and may contain material, words and ideas that are derogatory and offensive. Records could also contain private and intimate details about you or your family members, or information that conflicts with and challenges, what you know about your family’s history.
